Distribution of countries and territories

The country, regional and/or territorial distributions presented are for statistical convenience only and follow those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs (DESA) of the United Nations. They are grouped by economic criteria or membership of trade agreements for the purposes of statistical analysis and research.

There is no established convention for the designation of "developed" and "developing" countries or areas in the United Nations system. In common practice, Israel and Japan in Asia, Bermuda, Canada, Greenland, Saint Pierre et Miquelon, and the United States in northern America, Australia and New Zealand in Oceania, and Europe are considered "developed" regions or areas. This report includes all UN member states divided into four major categories: developing countries, transition economies, least developed countries and developed countries.

The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area, or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries. They are intended for statistical convenience and do not necessarily express a judgement about the stage reached by a particular country or area in the development process.
