Introduction

United Nations procurement delivery in 2010 has increased substantially in comparison to the previous year. The total UN procurement volume has increased by $747 million over the previous year, representing an increase of 5.4%. In terms of procurement of goods and services, agencies increased their procurement of goods by $681 million and increased that of services by $66 million over 2009. The 2010 data reverses the trend that has seen the UN's requirement for services exceed that of goods and revert to the trend of previous years where the proportion of goods far outweighed that of services contracted.

The 2010 report analyzes procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition, and examines United Nations system performance in increasing opportunities for vendors in developing countries and countries with economies in transition. Significant progress has been made towards achieving that objective (refer to Figures 4-8 in the Executive Summary for further details).

A comparative analysis of the agency share of goods and services categories procured by UN agencies first introduced in the 2009 report as a pilot is continued in 2010 and will be a standard feature in future reports.

In addition, the 2010 report looks at procurement by United Nations organizations from vendors that support the 'Global Compact'. The Compact measures engagement by the United Nations system with companies that take corporate social responsibility seriously, an increasingly important consideration in the global marketplace. While United Nations organizations give no preferential treatment to Compact signatories, the volume of procurement with registered Global Compact vendors increased again in 2010 reaching 17.94% of contracts of $30,000 or more.

The 2010 statistical report features an annual thematic supplement, now in its third year, that focuses on current issues in procurement. The focus for the 2010 supplement is on procurement and its contribution to the Millennium Development Goals. It includes an overview of the international debate on the subject, best practice cases and contributions from practitioners and international experts.

Glossary of terms

All sources of UN funding:	Covers technical cooperation and other development assistance from regular, extra budgetary and trust funds, as well as emergency, humanitarian and peacekeeping operations.
Development Assistance Committee (DAC) member countries:	A key forum of major bilateral donors who work together to increase the effectiveness of their common efforts to support sustainable development. DAC consists of 22 member countries as well as the Commission of the European Communities.
Developing countries and countries with economies in transition (DC/ET):	Countries for which the United Nations provides financial/technical assistance. A list of these countries is attached as Annex 2.
Fellowships:	Scholarships and study tours awarded to individuals for study and training within various operational activity programmes. Activities which do not involve individual award of a scholarship, such as group training and seminars, are not included.
Goods:	Includes both equipment and supplies.
International Project Personnel:	Experts and consultants hired internationally for technical cooperation activities.
National Project Personnel:	National personnel of all categories, including experts and consultants, hired locally for technical cooperation activities.
Procurement:	The acquisition of goods and services.
Services:	Contracts with companies/contractors or consulting firms. This does not include the hiring of individual experts and consultants.

Executive Summary

Total procurement of goods and services for operational activities of the UN system

The overall procurement volume (goods and services combined) of United Nations organizations during 2010 increased to $14.5 billion, from $13.8 billion in 2009 – a gain of 5.4 percent. The total procurement of goods increased $681 million, an increase of 10.7 percent, while procurement of services grew by $66 million, an increase of 0.9 percent. Between 2006 and 2010, United Nations procurement volume increased from $9.4 billion to $14.5 billion, attributable to a $2.4 billion growth in the procurement of goods and a $2.7 billion growth in the procurement of services for the same period.

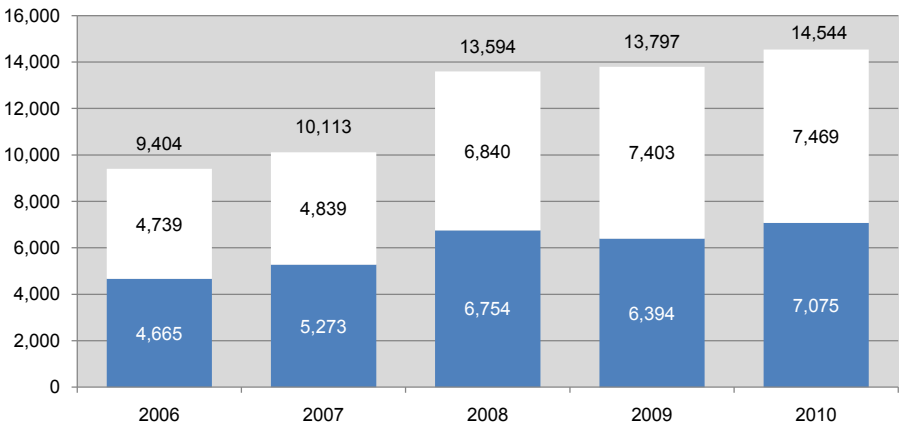
($ Million)



From 2006 to 2010, the procurement of services by the United Nations system rose as a share of total procurement, slightly overtaking the procurement share of goods for the first time in 2006. In 2010, the share of services still exceeds that of goods albeit only by a margin of 2.8 percent compared to 7.3 percent in 2009.

Ten major countries of supply to the UN system in 2010

The 10 major countries to supply United Nations organizations in 2010 (see Table 1) included four developing countries, with Afghanistan, Sudan, India and Pakistan accounting for 34.8 percent of the total procurement volume of the top 10 countries of supply.

Afghanistan is among the 10 major countries to supply the UN for the second year running, and increased its share of total United Nations procurement volume by 1.4 percentage points in 2010. Procurement from Afghanistan consisted primarily of construction, transport and demining services executed with national contractors by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and UNOPS respectively.

Sudan, also in its second year in this list, has retained its position as the United Nations' fourth largest supplier, despite a 0.6 percentage point drop in its share of total United Nations procurement volume. Procurement from Sudan also consisted of construction and transport services as well as fuel oils procured by the United Nations Procurement Division (UN/PD) and the World Food Programme (WFP).

India has featured in this list since 2000, and in 2010, was the fifth largest supplier to the United Nations system, with a 3.9 percent share of total United Nations procurement volume representing a decrease of 1 percentage point over 2009. Procurement from India included vaccines, pharmaceuticals and medical equipment procured primarily by UNICEF.

Pakistan is on this list for the first time with a share of total procurement volume of 3.2 percent. Procurement from Pakistan consisted primarily of food supplies, shelter, tents and field equipment, fertilizers and seeds procured by WFP, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) respectively.

The percentage share of total goods and services procured from the top 10 major countries of supply showed a promising decreasing trend between 2004 and 2006, denoting a broadening of the geographical spread of UN procurement. Between 2006 and 2009 (see Figure 3) this downward trend has reversed thereby increasing the procurement share of the top ten countries of supply to the United Nations. During this period the percentage share has increased by 12 percent however, it declined by 0.9 percent in 2010.

Procurement by UN agencies in 2009 - 2010

The following table lists the procurement volume of individual United Nations organizations in 2009 and 2010. Data are presented by the percentage share from developing countries and those with economies in transition which has increased by 2.9 percentage points from 2009 to 2010. Total procurement volume from 2009 to 2010 has increased by $747 million, as 18 of the 33 reporting United Nations organizations increased their procurement volume over the previous year. The Pan American Health Organization (PAHO), the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), WFP and UNOPS recorded the largest volume increases.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition

General Assembly resolution 57/279 on procurement reform (specifically paragraph 6), encourages United Nations organizations to increase sourcing opportunities for suppliers from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. General Assembly resolution 61/246 (specifically paragraph 24), reiterates the request. In response, United Nations organizations have placed more orders with suppliers from these countries. The growth of such orders has steadily grown over the 2006 to 2010 period (as shown in Figure 4), representing an increase of 62.6 percent for the same period.

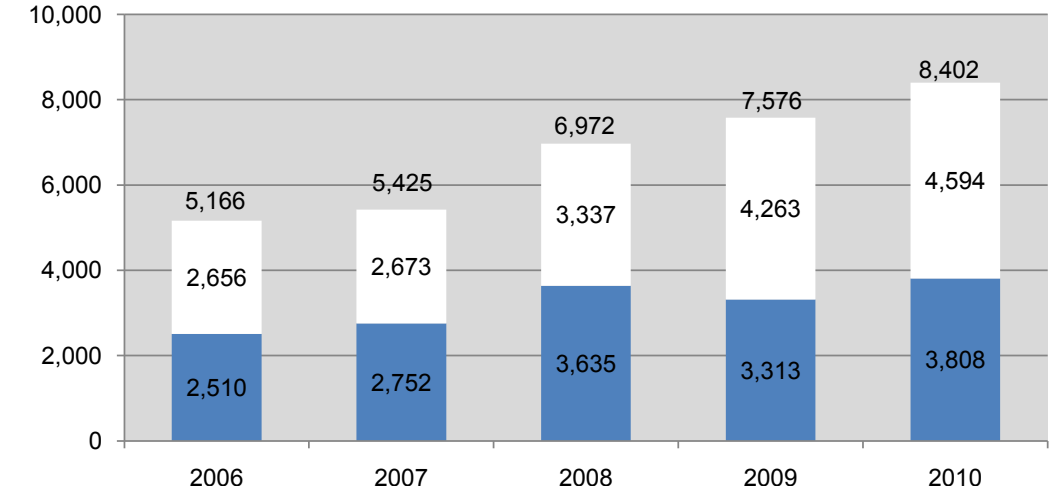
UN procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition, 2006-2010



In 2010, procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition increased by $826 over 2009 further building upon the $600 million increase from 2008 to 2009 and the $1.5 billion increase from 2007 to 2008. Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition has increased from 54.9 percent in 2009 to 57.7 percent of total United Nations procurement volume in 2010, while procurement from industrialized countries decreased from 43.9 percent in 2009 to 41.7 percent in 2010. Procurement from unspecified countries decreased from $151 million to $79.5 million in 2010. Countries are unspecified when organizations cannot attribute the origin of the supplier in their management information systems. This has been a decreasing trend over the last three reporting years, indicating further improvements in the accuracy of agencies' reporting mechanisms.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by region

Developing countries and countries with economies in transition in all regions experienced growth in their share of procurement from the United Nations organizations in 2010. Notably, the Asia and the Pacific and the Latin America and Caribbean states have increased their share of procurement by $395 million and $334 million respectively. The Arab, Africa and Europe and Commonwealth of Independent States regions have enjoyed continued steady growth in the period from 2006 to 2010.

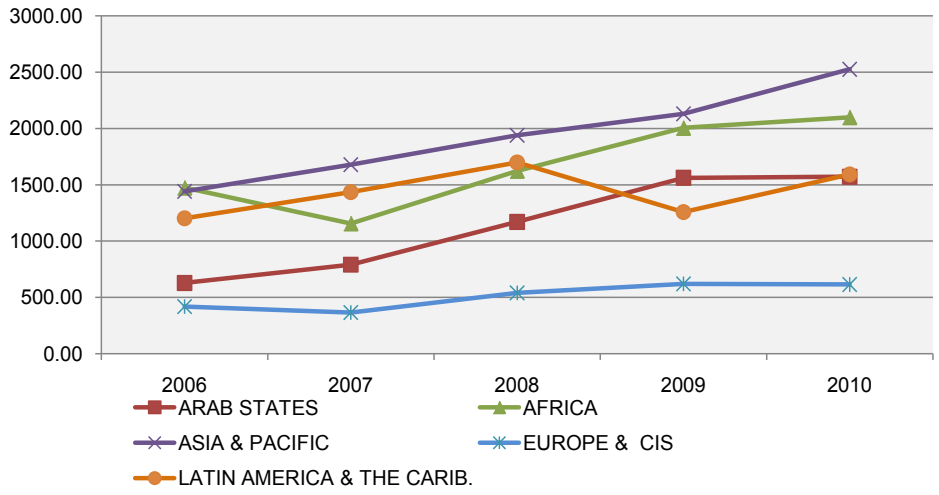
UN procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by region, 2006-2010 ($ Million)



Regional data from developing countries and countries with economies in transition show that all regions except the Arab and Europe and CIS states have seen an upward trend in procurement business. The percentage share of United Nations procurement from these states has decreased from 2009 to 2010 by 0.5 and 0.3 percent respectively. The Latin American and Caribbean states experienced a decrease in procurement share from 2007 to 2009 but recovered by 1.8 percent in 2010.

Top 20 developing countries and countries with economies in transition supplying UN operations in 2010

In total, procurement of goods and services from the top 20 developing countries and countries with economies in transition represents 36.8 percent of overall United Nations procurement volume, an increase of 2.8 percentage points over 2009. For a detailed overview of procurement volume trends, categories of goods and services procured, as well United Nations organizations shares for each of the countries listed in Table 3, please refer to the procurement profiles of these countries available on page 40 onwards.

United Nations Procurement and the Global Compact

UN agencies, in cooperation with their suppliers, are increasingly trying to 'buy for a better world'. They are looking beyond traditional economic parameters to make decisions based on life-cycle costs and associated environmental and social implications, to help producers - especially in the developing world - become more efficient and competitive in larger markets.

For the fourth year, the Annual Statistical Report 2010 features an analysis of the participation of UN suppliers in the world's largest global corporate citizenship initiative, the Global Compact. The United Nations strongly encourages its suppliers to support the Global Compact and its principles[1].

- In 1999, the United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan challenged the business leaders gathered at the World Economic Forum in Davos to develop greater social and environmental responsibility in their business activities. He offered them a new compact of shared values and principles, to give a human face to the global market: the Global Compact.

- The Global Compact is a framework for businesses that are committed to aligning their operations and strategies with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption. As the world's largest global corporate citizenship initiative, the Global Compact is a voluntary scheme, a learning dialogue and a platform for action.

Procurement from Global Compact members as a percentage of orders of $30,000 or more

The percentage of United Nations procurement volume which comes from contracts with Global Compact members has increased over the period 2006-2010, reaching 17.94 percent in 2010.

Figure 9

2006	6,141	756	12.32%
2007	6,819	1,056	15.50%
2008	9,338	1,321	14.15%

2010	14,765	2,022	17.94%

Global Compact Geographical Origin according to the volume of orders

Global Compact membership is still more widespread among UN suppliers located in the northern hemisphere with Europe and North America representing the highest share of membership. The aggregated share of UN suppliers from Africa, Asia and Central/South America with membership continues to trend positively having risen from 21 percent in 2006 to 30 percent in 2010. Participation of suppliers from Oceania continues to be very limited.

Sustainability reporting in the UN System

The United Nations has an impact on the economic, environmental and social fabric where it conducts its operations. Acknowledging this, the UN has committed to achieving climate neutrality and overall environmental sustainability, and it is pursuing this goal with a system-wide initiative since 2009.

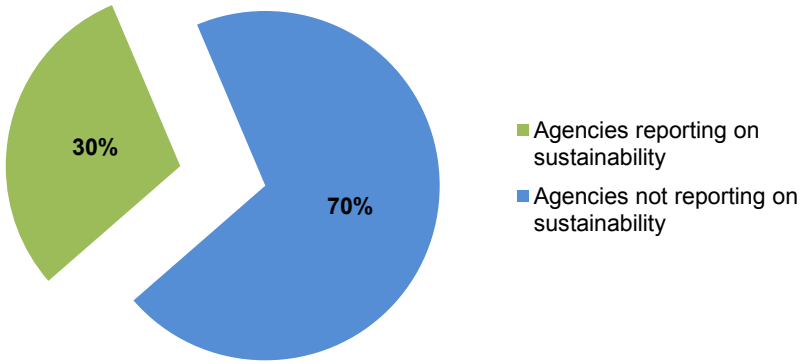
Openness and transparency on the way UN operations are managed and donor funds are employed are in the best interest of UN stakeholders and of the international community. For these reasons, a sustainability reporting system has been introduced.

For the third year, the Annual Statistical Report contains a section on sustainability reporting. The report focuses on two key areas of sustainability performance for the UN:

- sustainable procurement, and
- sustainable office management

Out of the 33 agencies that returned statistical information for 2010 and are therefore included in the ASR, 30 percent provided (in whole or in part) information on their sustainability performance[1].

Figure 12
Sustainability reporting among UN agencies



From vision to implementation

In terms of the framework for sustainable procurement, the report reflects the progress made by some sustainability champions in the UN system. United Nations Volunteers (UNV) has reported the adoption of an sustainable procurement policy and the World Trade Organization (WTO) plans to adopt one in 2011. UNOPS and UNV have initiated a sustainable procurement programme and the UN Office in Nairobi (UNON) and WTO will follow suit in 2011.

Procurement personel have undergone sustainable procurement training in the last three years in the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO), UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP), the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF) and UNOPS. The UN Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO) always makes its suppliers aware of their code of conduct when engaging them and the UNICEF Supply Division will start to do the same in 2011. UNV has applied its sustainable procurement policy to cases where environment and social issues are prevalent, such as printing, travel and contracts.

[1]The reports provided by FAO, UNIDO, UNOPS, UNV, WTO refer to the respective HQ only The report provided by UNON refers to the procurement function UNICEF reports on its Supply Division, with the exception of some procurement environmental information which refers to the global procurement function UNESCAP is also reporting for other Bangkok based agencies: UNEP, OCHA, OHCHR and ISDR

Tools and processes

In the UN system, the lack of an integrated reporting system remains the main barrier to reporting on sustainable procurement progress. To overcome this issue, UNICEF has analysed a sample of purchasing orders and estimated that about 52 percent of its procurement volume is placed with suppliers having written statement of their policy on human rights, labour rights and the environment or an ISO 14001 certification. They also estimate that about 8 percent of spending is placed with suppliers holding the SA8000 (or equivalent) certification, a global social accountability standard for decent working conditions.

In FAO, in 70 percent of tenders for cleaning products and services, and in 60 percent of tenders for office furniture, environmental criteria were specified and "greener" organizations/products received additional points during the evaluation phase.

For the third year, participation of suppliers from the reporting agencies in the Global Compact initiative has been analysed. Procurement statistics on contracts of $30,000 or more have been crossed with the list of Global Compact participants; the result shows a quite diverse level of participation among agencies. However, it should be considered that year on year statistical variations can be significant especially in those agencies with a smaller procurement volume.

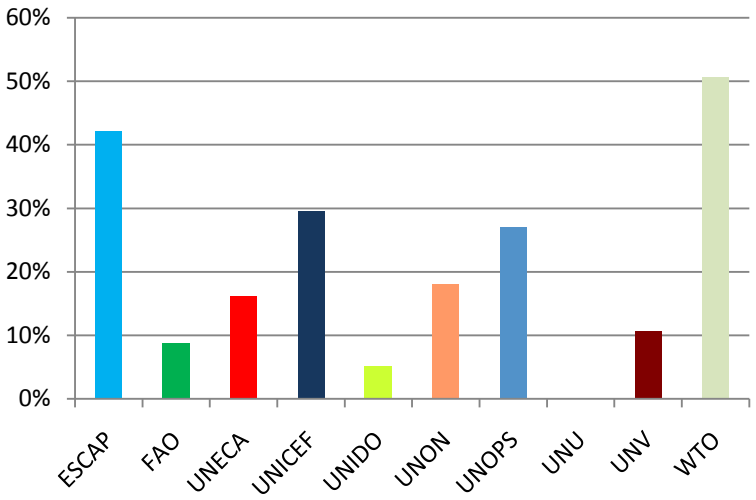
Percentage of expenditure with Global Compact suppliers



Environmental performance

The use of resources, materials and production of office waste has also been explored within the theme of environmental office performance. This is an area that intersects with sustainable procurement for administrative functions, and with the carbon neutrality goal. The number of agencies which have been able to report on 2010 water withdrawal, waste production and electricity consumption is the same as 2009.

Water consumption by agency in metres cubed per occupant

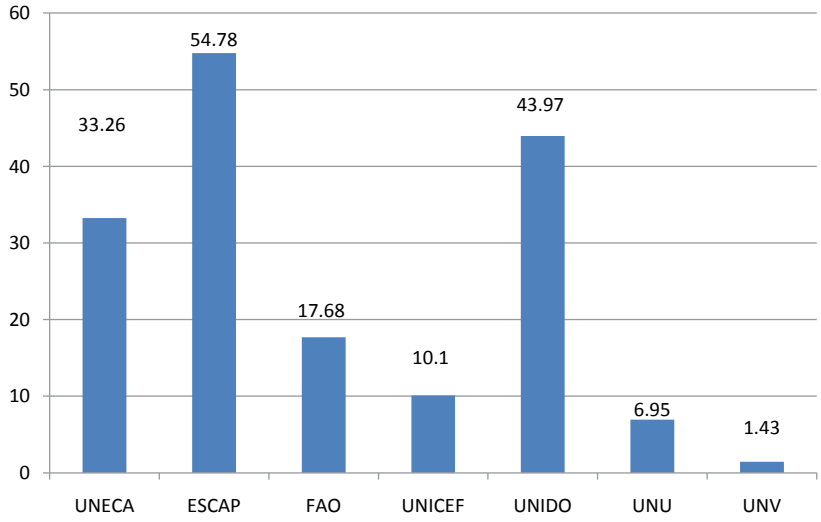

Figure 15 on waste production and management provides information on the amount of waste produced (in kilograms per office occupant) an its disposal. The UNICEF waste production results are particularly high because it includes both office and warehouse waste which at present cannot be separated.

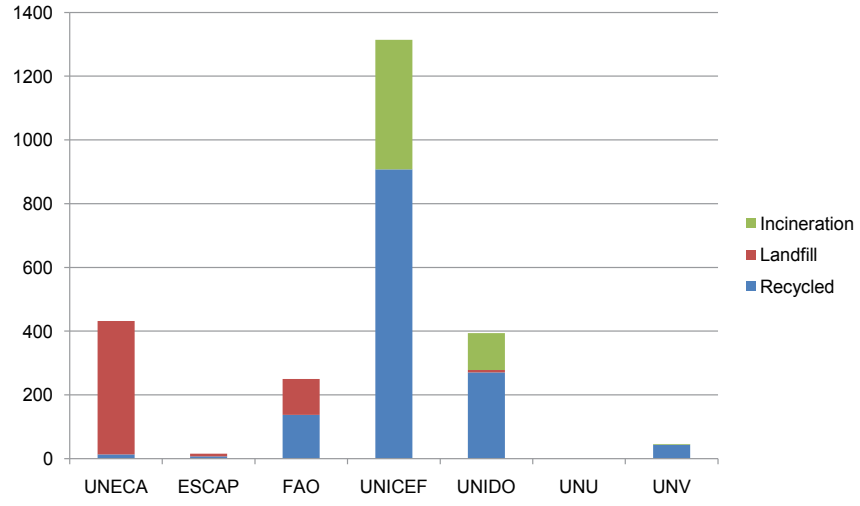
Figure 15
Waste production (kilogram per occupant) and disposal method by agency



Finally, Figure 16 shows the level of energy consumption per office occupant across seven reporting agencies.

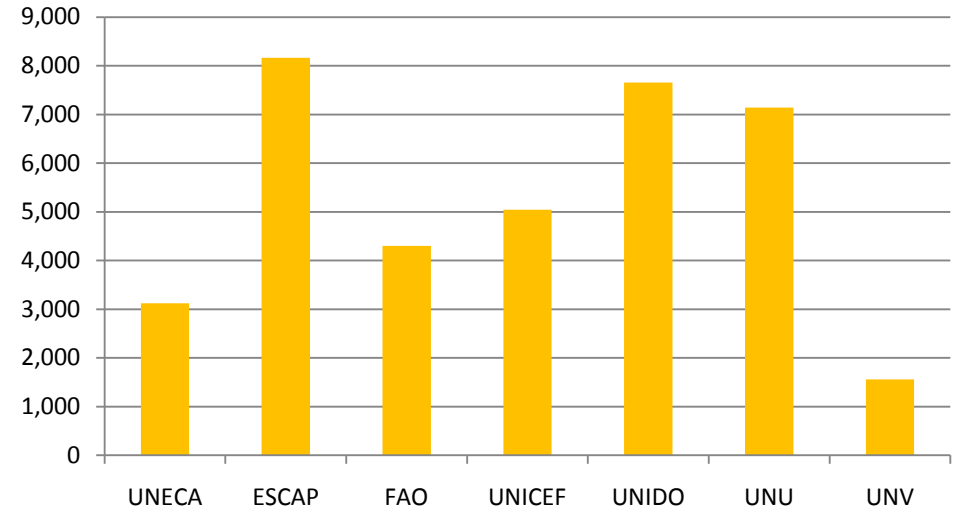
Electricity conumption by agency in kilowatt/hours per occupant



The objective for future reporting is to increase the amount of information received, involving a higher number of agencies and improving data quality. The sustainability report will also reinforce coordination with other existing UN programmes that share its objectives and partly also its tools, such as the UN Global Compact or the Sustainable UN (SUN) initiative.

While acknowledging that the report may show some limitations in its initial years, we are confident that it will send the right signal to the international community, to UN suppliers and the market at large, and finally to civil society and all our stakeholders.

About the report

Background

The first annual statistical report on procurement by UN agencies in respect of operational activities, prepared by the Inter-Agency Procurement Services Office (IAPSO) of the United Nations Development Programme, was submitted to the 39th session of the General Assembly (Doc. A/39/417) in 1984. By resolution 39/220 the General Assembly established the need for recurrent reporting of such information on operational activities and encouraged organizations of the UN system to co-operate with IAPSO in this important exercise. Since 2008 the report has been compiled by UNOPS as a result of the partial merger between UNOPS and IAPSO.

Methodology

Statistical data on procurement of goods and services and the personnel components for operational activities are requested from UN organizations. To facilitate collection and compilation of the large amount of data, UNOPS provides pro-forma tables available from the UNGM website, together with instructions for completing the reporting requirements.

The 2010 report compiles information supplied by 36 UN organizations in total (of which 36 provided procurement data and 9 personnel data). UNOPS relies entirely on the co-operation of the reporting entities. In general, response rates were satisfactory and data quality has improved with the use of better reporting tools.

Data is reported on goods based on countries of supply and on services based on country of contractor. Moreover, procurement orders and contracts for services are reported by contract amount and not by expenditures incurred. Most UN agencies cannot report data based on country of origin of goods, or on actual expenditures at the present time.
